

Wake-Up Call Story Writing

On the attached sheet write your wake-up call story.

Have you had wake-up call as an objector of war and violence? Have you embraced the call to be a peacemaker? If so, who was involved? Where were you? What impact did it have on your life? How has that experience brought you here?

Perhaps you are just now beginning to have a wake-up call as an objector to war and violence? What events or experiences have you led you to this point? Who has influenced you the most? What impact is it having on your life?

You may not feel called to object to war and violence. Reflect in your writing what keeps you from embracing a call to be a peacemaker at this point in your life?

When you finish, you will have an opportunity to share this story with someone else in the group as well as hear their story. Put your story in a place where you will see it on a regular basis. Over time see how you story develops.
